TOGETHER IN SCRIPTURE

Genesis 24:1–24:28

Context: Setting the Table

After laying a creational foundation, Genesis divides into two unequal halves of five sections each. The first half of the book (2:4–11:26) deals with the history of humanity as a whole, from its creation to the birth of Abram. The second half of the book (11:27–50:26) focuses on the history of the patriarchs. In this fourteenth and longest installment of the story of Abraham, he sends his servant back to his homeland to find a wife for his son Isaac.

Content: Hearing the Text

Read Genesis 24:1–24:28 together out loud.

Credo: Believing the Truth

Abraham faced a dilemma. In order for God's promises to be carried forward into the next generation, his son Isaac urgently needed a wife. Yet those same promises prevented Isaac both from taking a Canaanite wife and from leaving the land of Canaan to obtain a wife from elsewhere. Placing his confidence in the proven faithfulness of the God with whom he had walked for so long, Abraham sent out his servant to find a wife for his son. Even as he exhibited child-like trust in God's providence, the servant showed himself to be both a shrewd judge of character and a convincing and persuasive messenger. Resembling Abraham both in her vigorous hospitality and in her willingness to leave all that was familiar to her, Rebekah surpassed everyone's expectations. Isaac's singleness, like the infertility of his mother, would not and could not derail God's plan for rescuing the world through the offspring of Abraham.

Conduct: Reshaping Our Walk

How might we be tempted to believe that the difficulty of our circumstances invalidates the promises of God?

Example: Marriages in which biblical conflict resolution seems like an increasingly lost cause.

Humanly speaking, the promises of God were in the hands, not of Abraham or even Isaac, but of a slave whose name is not even mentioned. What are some of the circumstances in which we could be tempted to conclude our position in life makes us useless for the purposes of God?

Examples: Moms who feel "limited" by their children; Those who think they are too old to make a contribution or too young to make a difference.

Book of the Month

Discipling is not an option for believers—it's a priority. How should we carry out Christ's Great Commission? In The Master Plan of Evangelism, Dr. Robert Coleman draws on the Book of Acts, showing how to apply the early church's principles of ministry to contemporary congregations. His practical guidelines will help you fulfill Jesus' command to "make disciples of all nations."
